Nyg Vs Was The NY Giants seeing some key players hit the injury report ahead of their divisional rivalry match against Washington Sunday. With just a few more days to get ready for Sunday's game against the NFC East rival Washington Football Team, some key members of the NY Giants appeared on the injury report after Thursday's practice. Even with just two wins, the Washington Football Team should not be taken lightly. They have plenty of weapons on the offensive side of the ball, like Terry McLaurin, who had seven catches for 74 yards on 12 targets in week six against the Giants. That's why it's troubling to see Blake Martinez on injury report with a hamstring issue. Martinez had a standout game against Washington in Week 6, with 14 tackles and one QB hit. Martinez is currently tied with Jaylon Smith of the Dallas Cowboys for most tackles in the NFL. On the offensive side, running back Devonta Freeman is still nursing his ankle injury and was a limited practice participant. Freeman had 18 carries for 61 yards against Washington for the first time around, but hasn't played since getting the injury in Week 7 against the Philadelphia Eagles. Freeman has 172 yards rushing and a touchdown along with 58 receiving yards across games for giants. The full Giants injury report per Dan Salomone listed here: Did not participate: DB Ryan Lewis (hamstring) Limited: LB Devante Downs (shoulder), RB Devonta Freeman (ankle), LB Blake Martinez (hamstring), DB Logan Ryan (hip), WR Sterling (shoulder/toe) Full: WR Golden Tate (not injury related) Next: NY Giants stay or go: who's worth keeping in 2021 By Dan Benton | November 5, 2020 02:47 The New York Giants were back on the practice field in East Rutherford, New Jersey on Thursday as they prepare for a Week 9 game against the Washington Football Team. It was the first full practice of the week, coming on the heels of a Wednesday review and, as expected, wide receiver Golden Tate again joined his teammates. But Tate's participation was severely limited, and it's clear he's found himself in Joe Judge's doghouse. His workload did not reflect his designation in the part of practice open to the media. Meanwhile running back Devonta Freeman went through individual drills for the first time since injuring his ankle against the Philadelphia Eagles in Week 7. Defensive back Ryan Lewis was not spotted at practice. Below is the official injury report: Did not participate: DB Ryan Lewis (hamstring) Limited participant: RB Devonta Freeman (ankle), LB Devante Downs (shoulder), LB Blake Martinez (hamstring), Logan DB Ryan (hip), WR Sterling Shepard (shoulder/toe) Full participant: WR Golden Tate (not injury related) Blake Martinez, Devante Downs, Devonta Freeman, Logan Ryan, New York Giants, Ryan Lewis, Sterling Shepard, Injuries, Recent Giants news The New York Giants have released their first injury report ahead of their meeting with the Tampa Bay Buccaneers on Monday Night Football. Today's news is obviously Will Hernandez testing positive for COVID-19. Hernandez has already been placed on the Reserve/COVID-19 list, while another five offensive linemen were sent home while awaiting test results. It is worth noting that the players who were sent home after close contact with Hernandez are not considered high risk contacts and could be eligible to return as early as Friday after consecutive negative tests for COVID-19. If so, most of the Giants' starting offensive line should be intact for Monday Night Football. This long list is in addition to the Giants' regular injury report, which featured several players who suffered injuries in the Giants' loss to the Philadelphia Eagles. Didn't Practice Limited practice The New York Giants returned to the practice field for the last time prior to a Week 8 game against the Tampa Bay Buccaneers on a frigid Saturday afternoon, and it was more of the same. All of the team's offensive linemen were present and accounted for outside guard Will Hernandez (COVID-19) and should be well to go until another round of negative tests on Sunday. But head coach Joe Judge refused to name Hernandez's replacement, leaving the door open to the practice squad Chad Slade and rookie Shane Lemieux. We're going to consider all these guys right now. We'll go through that today after practice and kind of go through how the week went and what's going on, Judge told reporters. We have a lot of installation to go today with some red area and two minutes. Without having a lot of these guys on Wednesday, it kind of backlogged some of the things we've had to do. There are still some decisions to be made there. Meanwhile running back Devonta Freeman (ankle) missed his third practice in a row and has been ruled out for Monday despite Judge hinting he had a shot to play. a chance at this point, the judge said. We'll check with the coaches and see where. Really through this practice and see where they go into this weekend. No decision has been made in any way. Wide receiver Sterling Shepard (shoulder/toe) acknowledged the hurt late in the week but claims he is ready to play. He didn't get a name. Nor did rookie cornerback Darnay Holmes. If you don't have your storttt, especially for a skill position guy, it's hard to get your job done in any way, shape or form. So that's one of the more frustrating injuries I've had, Shepard said. But I've come a long way, and I thank the coaches for that. Finally, veteran safety Adrian Colbert (shoulder) is out and wide receiver C.J. Broad (concussion) is questionable.
